Overview

"I joined Fross Zelnick because of the firm's global reputation for protecting the valuable trademark and copyright assets of the world's most celebrated brands. It is a privilege to share in the successes of our diverse clientele and work with a team of preeminent attorneys dedicated to resolving our clients' issues in ways that also address their business concerns."

Danny Nuzzaci's litigation practice focuses on protecting clients' rights and interests in their intellectual property assets. Danny's litigation experience enables him to identify, analyze, and address matters from multiple perspectives. In this way, he is able to offer creative solutions to the issues his clients face.

With a litigation background in state, federal, and appellate court practice, Danny has experience in copyright, trademark, and unfair competition matters. He works with diverse companies across a range of industries, including apparel, consumer products, cosmetics and beauty, fashion, entertainment, and media.

Prior to joining Fross Zelnick, Danny was an associate in the litigation department of a leading New York law firm.
